During the two-hour forum, several school representatives criticized state lot tery officials for implying that lottery money assists education.

David VanWinkle, superintendent of Alton-Unit 11 School District, said people missies, enly believe that lottery evenue "is put on-top of Illinois state aid." Lottery funds, do-not supplement, but replace state funds, set, aside for education, he said.

Many citizens are reluctant to vote for local property tax increases because they believe schools benefit from the lottery. VanWinkle said.

Jackie Eadie, a board member from Edwardsville Unit 7 School District, said lottery tickets have the phrase—"All lottery proceeds benefit education"—printed on them.

"The state should either take that sentence off the ticket or let the lottery fundeducation," Eadle said. Her statement drew instant applause.

Voters in the Edwardsville area defeated a property tax-increase on the April 4 ballot for the school district. Voters also turned down a tax hike request in November.

Since the latest property tax defeat, Ead-ie said school officials had to make $1.2 million in cutbacks, including the elimina-tion of all high school athletics and school curricular activities. Some of experience have received layoff notices, she said.

curricular activities. Some tenured teachers with more than 20 years of experience hay received layoff notices, she said.

State lawmakers have been "holding stidents hostage" with their political infighting about an income tax increase, Eactivities and the state's financial support for education at such a low, no one from the St. Louis area will be entitled to relocate to the Metro-East, said Jenece Brown, a teacher in the Edwardsville school district.

"My question is, 'At the rate re going, 'my compared to the state's financial support for education at such a low, no one from the St. Couis area will be entitled to relocate to the Metro-East, said Jenece Brown, a teacher in the Edwardsville school district.

"My question is, 'At the rate re going, 'my over." asked Brown.
East St. Louis Superintendent Elmo Bush delivered a request for a state loan of at least $17 million to help that financially strapped district.

Without some sort of relief, the East St. Louis school district is heading for "certain "We look forward to another bleak year without some relief," Bush said at the forum. The school district has already issued layoff notices to about half of its employees, and any further cuts would can be accumulated debt. The lean would be ameritized over a 10-year period, Bush said.

The school district would adhere to a strict budget during those years, and of the adhered to its budget, Bush said.

"We look forward to manner pepa will find the adhered to its budget, Bush said.

"We will take a very careful look at the proposal," Sanders told Bush.

Rural poverty rising

approval.

In the case noted above, a husband and wife were divorced in 1977. The wife was awarded ocustody of the parties' two children, ages 13 and 8. The divorce decree provided that the father was to pay $50 per week support for the parties' two minor children. When the older child reached tha ge of 18, the father on his own reduced his payment of child support from $50 per week to $25 per week. The mother ac-cepted this reduced payment for five years, but she filled a post-decree petition in 1987 contending that her ex-husband was delin-quent in his child support.

The father argued that he was within his right in reducing his child support, and he also maintained that the mother had actual knowledge and had acquiesed in the reduction of child support by not filing a petition for arrearage for five years. The Appellate Court found that the former husband had no right to unlaterally reduce his band had no right to unlaterally reduce his proval. Therefore, it was found that there was a child support arrearage.

Haine's choice a wise one

No matter what his fellow Democrats are saying, State's Attorney Bill Haine deserves plaudits for bringing Don Weber back into the office ior oringing Don Weber back into the office.

Since no one has revealed the reasons, we can only speculate why Haine forced the resignation of former assistants Susan Jensen and Michael Nieskes prior to bringing Weber on board this week, but we can safely assume that the incidents were prompted by the same circumstances that all offices in transition must reckon with — a new boss, a new method of doing things and frequent disagreement in the interim.

Haine's invitation to Weber box.

Haine's invitation to Weber borders on the incredible. Weber is a die-hard Republican from Collinsville. Haine is a die-hard Democrat from Alton. Weber held the job from 1980-84, before being bumped from office by Dick Allen.

Allen.
During his time in office,
Weber was an excellent prosecutor, but he was also a loose cannon who frequently tried cases in the press. While Haine has not been media-shy, he is more reluc-tant to release facts until cases are solid. With Haine's supervi-sion there is little doubt that Weber's true talent will be supervi-ubt that will be ant to release facts until cases are solid. With Haine's supervision there is little doubt that Weber's true talent will be allowed to flourish.

You've got to wonder whether Haine did not "cut a deal" with Weber during the 1988 election when both were seeking the office. A few months after Haine soundly whipped fellow Democrat Dick Allen of Granite City in a spring's primary. Weber decided to get out of the rapetition in last November's general election Haine said there really was no dealer to be used to be used to good to pass up. Haine has the right to add and subtract from his staff as statutes and budgets allow. The mere thought that he would place a priority on quality over party fluff is kind of humorous. But you've got to respect the man for it.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

I saw a show on television recently where a Phoenix, Ariz., company advertised that an individual could make $1,000 a day as an agent for HUD/FHA in notifying people that they had insurance premium refunds available from real estate loan that you have paid off an FHA or HUD real estate loan that you can be entitled to an insurance pecting as an agent for HUD in notifying other people about these refunds? For $40, this company would provide instructions and information on obtaining lists of people due refunds. This all sounds too good to be true. Is it?

C.P.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

Answer: You have been brooding about this for seven long years? Well, your suspicions are well-founded — your wife and her sister should have done it differently, although it's not the sort of thing that wrecks careers.

possible and get back on the right track.
Yes, their actual tax liability represents the gain between the value of the house when they inherited it and the $50,000 selling price. The easiest way would have been to pay that tax at the time and, in '81, the old capital gains tax would have applied. After that the only tax they would have owed would have been on the interest income.

The other way would have been to report it under the installment sales method and prorate both the gain and the interest income over the life of the agreement. Unfortunately, she added, the statute of limitations has run out on the early years of the agreement.

But they definitely should get some professional help in ironing it out as soon as possible. The IRS isn't going to hang anyone by her thumbs for this — it's a pretty common flub—but there's no point in letting it get any more complicated than it is.

Hospice group to meet

Open to all bereaved in the community, the People Needing People Bereavement Support Group sponsored by Hospice of Madison County will meet Tuesday, April 25, from 7 to 5 pt. Mary Peach, RN, MSW, CSW, is the facilitator and founder of the Support group. "It takes some people a few meetings warm up in the group reality cares. They start to get a sense of hope from the group." She said.

At the meetings: the group.

At the meetings, the group deals with practical problems left by the death of a loved one.

"We talk a lot about difficulties with housework, legal problems, financial situations and family crisis. We also talk about grief and its symptoms; independent dence versus dependence on chil-dren; the responsibilities you have when someone dies; rest-lessness and anxiety," Peach said.

"The group also deals with anger from time to time. When someone you love dies, there can be a tremendous amount of rage and guilt," she said.

Peach also challenges the conventional view of bereavement groups as all depression and crying.

"We try to create a safe and comfortable environment for sharing and support. We want to help bereaved people realize they are not alone and isolated," she said. "We do our share mourning and crying. Then, we help ourselves to heal, by reaning out of ourselves to help oth-

Uh huh.

An amazing amount of planning is behind most of Copperfield's illusions He will of China was a constant of the wall of China through the ancient structure in 1986 during a television special. In 1983, he made the Statue of Liberty vanish. It is reported that illusion cost $500,000 and took 1½ years to prepare. Developing illusions, which make take two months to two years to prepare, is an ongoing process, he said.

two months to two years to prepare, is an ongoing process, he said.

"I try to develop a lot of different areas. Challenging myself and the meantime. I compare to work," Copperfield said.

That is an understatement. Copperfield has been seen by more people than any other magician, including Houdin. Copperfield has enjoyed many accomplishment since the first two works. The production of the process of the process of the product of the process of the pro said.

The proposal would rescind a 100-acre limit placed on the project when Congress lirst approved it in 1954 and repeal a requirement that the city of East St. Louis pay for the maintenance, the Illinois lawmakers said.

"The federal government should pay for the maintenance of this park just like it does in every other national park in the Dailed States," said Costello of Belbeylle. million would be used to purchase and clear land, and to begin initial architectural planning of the waterfront park, Costello said.

In 1994, commission to develop a plan to include the Illinois riverfront in the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial in St Louis.

National Expansion Memorial in St Louis.

The Jefferson National Memorial Commission submitted its formal statement of the Interior Donald Hodel in September 1987 but Hodel withheld final approval-before leaving office.

"The secretary wanted private capital to be invested in the park before any federal money was spent, and local business dicht assured of a federal commitment," said Costello. "It was the old chicken-and-the-egg dilemma."

The new legislation, introduced in both the House and Senate, would take the secretors according to Costello's press secretary.
The first phase of the Illinois riverfront plan, as described in the commission report, provides for acquisition of 100 acres, for access and construction of a visitor promenade.

The commission estimated that, under optimal funding, this phase would take anywhere from two to four years to complete and cost about $34 million.

Although the money provided by the new legislation falls far short of what is needed on the part of the provided that the state of Illinois and developers

The only reason we got the win is no inner fire. This team is the same whether they win or lose. The Flyers (22 in the SWC, 2-7 overall) employed four pitcheers, none of them together the most was what happened in the Warriors' biggest inning, a five-run fourth. Flyer starter Jerome Gaston and reliever Demond was considered to the control of the start of before Brian Harshany singled in two runs for an $2 lead.

"Tm very upset with the lack of aggressiveness," Stegemeier said. "We had the heart of our batting order up there against some pitching that just wasn't very good. The hit the ball. Sure, we got the runs, but nobody swing the bat until Harshany did. You don't go up there to walk. That's hard to understand. Warriors scored twice in the first when Joe Wallace doubled and Kurt Hodges tripled. Hodges came home when the relay was misplayed. Chris Bartling drove in a run with a single in the third but the fourth when Dion Dean doubled, Ken Dunn tripled and Nevilles reached on Lignoul's error.
